Challenge

To make digital time tracking experience more efficient than traditional paperwork

Solution

ELEKS created a complex enterprise system for activity reporting that allowed employees to simplify their time tracking and client billing processes. The conventional time tracking tasks, previously associated with manual note taking, can now be performed automatically on-the-go, faster, and with greater efficiency thanks to integrated activity capturing features.

Initially developed for desktop use, the application evolved, over seven years of close collaboration, into a cross-platform solution.

Available on six different mobile platforms, the app was adapted to support the emerging smartwatch gadgets. The smartwatch app integrates only the most essential product features, enabling users to start/stop tracking time, and review a graphical representation of a report or create a voice memo with a single tap.

Technology

Mobile Solutions: Objective-C, Java, C#, SQLite

Server Side: ASP.NET

Security: Good Dynamics Secure Mobility Platform

Features and benefits:

Transparent and responsive UI

Together with the customer, ELEKS' team implemented a smart, animated interface with intuitive and simple user controls.

Omnichannel experience

Application functionality can be extended across several devices assigned to a single user account. All data is quickly and securely transferred and synchronized, creating a seamless experience across wrist, mobile, and desktop versions.

Offline operating mode

The application can run in both offline and online modes, ensuring entered data is stored locally and uploaded as soon as a network connection is restored.

Native support on multiple platforms

The app is available on six mobile platforms, each developed natively:

android

BlackBerry 10.

androidwear

Windows Phone

What sets them apart is their ability to focus on areas of excellence and provide thought leadership to their customers. That's unusual in my experience and pretty valuable.
